Teen donates bone marrow to save sibling's life

SISTER ACT: Beth, left, and Aimee Easterbrooke-Smith on transplant day.

SISTER OF MERCY

DEVOTED Aimee Easterbrooke-Smith hopes to have given her big sister the gift of life.

Aimee, 17, stepped forward after learning Beth, 18, needed a bone marrow transplant when she was diagnosed with leukaemia.

Beth, from Roker, said: "We have always been close, but Beth going through all this has made our relationship even stronger."
